A Good Shoe is Good Friend

A good shoe is closer to you than a brother. It upholds you under all circumstances, and is true to you until the end of its life. That is a GOOD shoe!

Like a real friend, it never gives

Like a real friend, it never gives you pain, nor are you ever ashamed to be seen in its company.

On the basis that a man is known by the company he keeps, the good shoe recommends you on many an important occasion.

The whole path of your life is made more consfortable and delightful in the company of that GOOD shoe.

If you wear "INVICTUS SHOES" you know what meaning there is in the shoe-friendship.

Hark! Did you hear the bell? What bell? The fine fire bell that was purchased by the Town Council some months ago. No, we have not heard it. It is laying in the fire hall a curiosity to those who have had business at the hall but as far, as the general public is concerned they have not seen or heard it, and as for any use in case of fire it might just as well be laying at the fac-tory and the money be still in the coffers of the town treasury. The time is now here when danger from fires increases about 100 per cent, and every precaution that can possibly be taken to prevent them or subdue them if they get started should have been taken long ago. It is to be hoped that the Town Council will get busy at once and put up the fire bell.

On Track of the Mail Order Houses

The large mail order houses of the cities ruined hundreds of small towns in the States a few years ago. Towns that once had several hundred inin the States a few years ago. Towns that once had several hundred inhabitants were practically depopulated, business places and houses were deployed in the products of the separation of desolation. No one would move to work the separation of the to $30 an acre and very little was changing hands at that. The farmers woke up and today there is no better town of its size in the States; new pub-tic buildings have been erected and the residential pirt is built up with modern houses; land is selling at $50 to $100 an acre and everyone is pros-perous. Not a dozen packages of mail order goods go into the town in a month, and those who do get them one; in a while, sneak to the depot at might after the goods—they are night after the goods—they ashamed to let the people aslamed to be adout it.

In Western Canada mail order houses are putting the "kiloshi" on our small town and as long as our frends deal with these concerns just so long will things be at a standstil. However may be a chance that a few dollars can be saved now but in the long run you are out, the home merchant is out and only the mail order houses are ahead of the game. — Exchange.

Hark! Did you hear the bell? What bell? The fine fire bell that was purchased by the Town Council some months ago. we have not heard it. It is lay-ing in the fire hall a curiosity to those who have had business at the hall but as far, as the general public is concerned they have not seen or heard it, and as for any use in case of fire it might just as well be laying at the factory and the money be still in the coffers of the town treasury. The time is now here when dan ger from fires increases about 100 per cent. and every precaution that can possibly be taken to pre vent them or subdue them if they get started should have been taken long ago. It is to be hoped that the Town Council will get busy at once and put up the fire bell.

On Track of the Mail Order Houses

The large mail order houses of the cities ruined hundreds of small towns in the States a few years ago. Towns that once had several hundred inthat once had several hundred in-halitants were practically depopu-lated, business places and houses were empty and these places took on an air of desolation. No one would move to such places, and the farmers had no more home market for the products of the farm and farm land values them-selves went down to bed rock. The farmers at last opened their eyes to the cause, began to nationise the homethe cause, began to patronite the home the cause, began to patronite the home merchants and to cut out the mail or-der houses. The result was inevitable and today the small towns are thriving business places. One of these towns in particular once had a population of something over a thousand people; business places were empty, scores of vacant buildings were almost hidden by weeds, and the mail order houses did a land office business in that town; adjoining farm land was selling at $25 to $30 an acre and very little was changing hands at that. The farmers woke up and today there is no better town of its size in the States; new pub the buildings have been erected and the residential part is built up with modern houses; land is selling at $70 to $100 an acre and everyone is pro perous. Not a dozen packages of mail order goods go into the town in a month, and those who do get them one; in a while, sneak to the depot at night after the goods-they ashamed to let the people people know alout it.

In Western Canada mail order houses are putting the "kilosh" on our small town and as long as our friends deal with these concerns just so long will things be at a standstill.

There may be a chance that a few dolong will be a chance that a few dolon ars can be saved now bet in the long run you are out, the home merchai s out and only the mail order house are ahead of the game. —Exchange.

A Sad Story
